WIRES AGAIN DOWN.

Heavy storms of yesterday again prostrated the wires and no communication was possible last night

GENERAL NEWS

BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN!

Invested with the Pallium

BALTIMORE, Feb, 10 —Most Rev J Gibbons who succeeded the late James Rosevelt Bailey in the arch episcopal see of Baltimore was invested with the pallium at the Roman Catholic cathedral to day A large number of bishops and clergy of the church from all parts of the United States were in attendance The ceremonies were of a very impressive character

Funeral Honors

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 10 —Life size pictures of the pope draped in mourning and surmounted by the papal arms were displayed from the altars of most of the Catholic churches to day and eulogiums pronounced at the morning masses. The chief exercises will take place Tuesday. By an arrangement by Archbishop Kendrick applying to the entire arch diocese high masses for the repose of the dead will be celebrated that day in every church with pontifical high mass at St John s, in this city

WASHINGTON CITY.

Treaty with Samoa.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 10 —Ratifications of the treaty of friendship and commerce between the United States and Samoa will be exchanged to-morrow by Secretary Evarts and Mr Mamea Samoan ambassador The latter with his counsel and adviser Mr Colmesnil will leave here for Samoa within a few days They will be conveyed thither from San Francisco in a vessel of the North Pacific squadron As by the treaty the harbor of Pagoa is ceded to the United States for naval depot and coaling station, a survey of the harbor and adjoining waters will soon be made. This harbor has already been pronounced by Commodore Wilkes to be the best in the South Pacific ocean The governments of the Hawaiian Islands and that of the United States are the only governments that have so far recognized Samoa as an independent nation, but it is presumed that other governments will follow the example The present revenues of Samoa are about $10 000 a year, but with (for the first time) a tariff law it is supposed the revenue will be increased to $100,000. The United States are exempted from such duties. The Samoan Islands are in direct line from San Francisco to the Australian coast, and the Pacific Mail steamers pass within sight of them It is probable that contracts will be made for conveyance of mails to and from Samoa

Land Office Decisions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9 —Secretary Schurz has affirmed the decision of the general land office in the matter of the survey of Jurupa rancho, comprising 39 000 acres of land in San Bernardino county—confirmed to Abel Stearns. This decision approves the recommendation made by the surveyor general last October for erection of southern and eastern boundaries.

Appeal has been taken from the decision of Commissioner Williamson concerning the survey of rancho Huasna including some 21,000 acres in San Luis Obispo, and all papers were yesterday transmitted to the secretary of the interior.

Decision of a Railroad Case.

The secretary of the interior has declined to disturb his decision of October 12th in the case of M. O. Streeter vs Missouri Kansas and Texas Railroad Company The review was sought by the company on the ground that the land involved had been patented to the company and that in consequence thereof the claim of Streeter was not confirmed by the act of April 21, 1876. The secretary, however, declares the statute mandatory and requires that patents shall issue in all cases coming within its provisions This establishes the principle that the law is retrospective in its provisions applying to cases adjudicated as well as those requiring original action The act above refers to confirms the homestead and pre emption entries on land within rail road limits made prior to receipt by the district officers of the department letter withdrawing the lands, and also confirms entries based upon their entry which were valid, and subsisting at the receipt of such letter of withdrawal This secures many entries made after the definite locations of railroads but prior to withdrawals, and in this respect changes materially the practice of the department as the grants have been heretofore held to be effective from the dates of location evidenced by filing and acceptance of maps of survey, etc., in the department

Tax and Tariff Bills.

The tax and tariff contests are certain to occupy much time in both branches of congress, and if, in addition to all these topics the dollar bill were gotten will get to work as it probably will at an early day, there will be little prospect of an adjournment of the session until the melting heat of summer and political demand of local preparation for congressional campaigns unite to force it

Post Office Changes.

WASHINGTON, Feb 9 —Postoffices established at Norfolk, Douglas county, Oregon Mary E. Melvin, postmaster, Sulphur Springs, Douglas county, Oregon, John Cowan, Postmaster. Discontinued Carrollton, Cowlitz county, W T. Postmasters appointed Clark W Durkee, Express, Baker county, Oregon

Opposing Policies in England

[From the London Economist Jan

The reasonable conservative says I have no love for the Turks but I must protect my interests as [illegible] and I [illegible] this more easily by backing [illegible] the Turks than by any other means, I must back up the Turks The reasonable liberal says I admit that the Turks have been useful in protecting my interests as an Englishman but there are some things which I loathe to do however convenient they may be and backing up the Turks is one of them I am not going to neglect my interests but I must find some other way of serving them

THE PAST AND THE FUTURE

[From the New York Times

William Lloyd Garrison might well try to hold the receding tide as to keep alive public interest in the partisan aspects of the Southern question The purity of his motives none disputes The difference between him and the W [illegible] Chandler whose epistles he upholds is the difference between conviction and expediency His logic too considered merely as logic is unanswerable [illegible] can be no justification of the president's southern policy save one that surrenders Republican ideas of duty and impairs his own title On these points Mr. Garrison's opinions and our own very nearly accord It is not because we are at variance with him is regard is the merits of the president's policy that we regret his encouragement of the Chandler quarrel He is too honest a man to be mixed up with the selfish malcontents and schemers who affect devotion to principle that they may the more readily produce party dissensions And we have supposed that he is too sagacious a man to be deluded by the cries of an insignificant faction into the belief that something may be gained by fighting an issue which for all practical purposes is as dead as secession He goes on saying hard things about Mr Hayes and there will be multitudes to say amen But does he really imagine that outside of small and suspicious circles any real interest attaches to the old forms of the southern question? What benefit can accrue to the Republican party to the abandoned southern Republicans, or to the country? It were as wise to imitate Mr Blaine and wage over again the war of 1812 as to keep out of its coffin the dead controversy respecting reconstruction and the south for the purposes of the campaign in 1880 If there were a probability of Mr Hayes forgetting his pledge not to accept a renomination, the ammunition so carefully stored by Mr Garrison and others might then be available As matters now are, the labor is in vain Subjects of much greater moment than the consistency of Mr. Hayes occupy public attention, and they are unfit to be party leaders who cannot discern the growth of these subjects, the momentum they have acquired and their possible effects upon the future of parties the Republican party included

Bristow's View of the Situation.

[Washington dispatch to Philadelphia Press]

Ex Secretary Bristow, in speaking of the controversy between the senate and the president, said that as far as he could judge its effects upon the party did not extend beyond the capital and that the people did not care for the senate that on the financial question both parties are much mixed and it is impossible to say with what effect upon existing party organizations that if congress had authorized the funding of legal tenders as desired some time ago specie payment would have been reached before this and the strain of receding values would have been passed financial operations having reached a solid basis business would now be on the sure road to prosperity, and the business disasters which are inevitable under any circumstances would have been no worse than experienced

How they Turn About and Jump About

[From the New York Tribune]

Mr Voorhees with other copperheads denounced the issue of paper dollars in 1862 because they were needed for the expenses of the war and insisted that the government should use nothing but gold because he believed that it could not get the gold and so must stop the war and now he turns right about, demanding a depreciated silver dollar as a preparation toward abolishing coin and together and swamping the finances with unlimited paper He and all his fellows and allies were in dead savage earnest and they carried thousands and thousands of unthinking people with them as earnest men always do

ADDRESS TO THE CZAR

GRATITUDE OF BULGARIAN CITIZENS OF PLEVNA

Je Nord publishes the text of an address presented to the czar of Russia by the Bulgarian inhabitants of Plevna after the town had been taken by the Russians It reads as follows

Great Emperor The centuries of suffering of the Bulgarians are ended They have gone beyond hope of return by the sole fact that your majesty has thrown his sword into the balance of destinies Great sovereign you have covered us with your buckler against the barbarism of infidels and you have given us new life In coming to our country you have lit up as the sun and the chains that we have borne for ages have melted away as snow melts before the influence of the solar rays. Can we remain indifferent to this grand event, or results from which our children and their descendants, as well as ourselves, will profit? By our suffering during a siege of five months, we, inhabitants of Plevna, have assumed the right to place ourselves at the head of the Bulgarian people in order to express our warmest gratitude to your majesty We are firmly persuaded that the deliverance of Plevna is the work of deliverance for ancient Bulgaria. Plevna is the first to be resuscitated after being dead for centuries.

In order to engraft the date of this resurrection in the memory of our descendants, and that in the future they may recall the happiness that you have accorded us in visiting our city we ask of your majesty an authorization to found a gymnasium for boys in Plevna and name it after your majesty—Czar Liberator—that every Bulgarian may venerate it forever

Bulgaria liberated by your benevolence sire considers you her saviour she ought to consecrate her children to you, who are the hope of her country, the gauge of her progress to the path of true civilization and of her fraternal union with Russia Under the reign of Alexander son of George Strashimir the star of Bulgaria has been dimmed for long centuries behind these same heights of Plevna, but from which it now shines resplendent thanks to another Alexander covered with the egis of St George the Victorious, and justly named The terror of oppression and tyranny

The Bulgarian inhabitants of Plevna of both sexes, are deeply touched and will remain forever thankful

British Regret and Lamentation.

[Extract Telegraphed from London Post]

Practically all are agreed that the capital of Turkey and the key of the East is in the hands of the czar Indignation will be of little avail It will be alleged that no deception has been practised and we shall discover that this was one of the terms of the armistice which was never communicated to us Yesterday a British military and naval force could at any moment occupy Constantinople while an Austrian army could cut Russia's communications To day the situation is entirely altered The British fleet can no longer advance to Constantinople and may find itself even barred out of the Dardanelles The czar can now afford to laugh at Austrian menaces, since his communications are open from Constantinople to Odessa or Sebastopol Our pottering over a trumpery six millions will probably cost us ten times that sum but whatever the cost it is still to be hoped that the country will see its honor vindicated. The direct attack upon our honor will raise a feeling of resentment not to be appeased until we have taught our foe that we have the will and the power to punish chicanery and maintain the empire which he is seeking to undermine.

Mistake of Dawes and Hoar.

[From the New York World.]

If there were any Massachusetts men on the floor of the senate they must have hung their heads for shame to think how differently Webster fought the fight of the old commonwealth when Hayne challenged him to the encounter nearly half a century ago! The case of Massachusetts was no better then than it was yesterday, but Webster was skillful enough to fight him behind the barricades of Bunker Hill Hoar and Dawes rashly rushed out into the open field of the Hartford convention and have only themselves to thank for it that the hard hitting Blaine first brought them both to the ground together and then in a most ignominious manner picked them up again and tossed them both in the old pine tree flag as Sancho was tossed in the inn keeper's blanket

Not Complimentary to Oregon Oratory

Washington Correspondence of the Chicago Journal of Commerce]

Of the eulogies on Morton in the senate the flattest and most commonplace efforts were those of Senators Paddock of Nebraska Mitchell of Oregon and Wadleigh of New Hampshire Senator Mitchell sought to make his part impressive by adopting the sing song tone of a rural preacher, and one had only to close his eyes to realize the music of an Oregon whang doodle mourning over its first born Senator Booth's oration was from first to last crowded with unmonotonous narration striking antitheses and bold climaxes and was singularly free from the triteness so common on funeral occasions He had evidently expended great labor in its preparation for the sentences were condensed [illegible] of ideas

TILDEN'S INTRIGUE

[illegible] AGAINST HAYES AND SEAT [illegible] A BAG OF MONEY [illegible] THE CONSPIRACY [illegible] SOUTHERN MEN

[Cor New Orleans Times
WASHINGTON Jan 1 1878

A good many incorrect statements are going the rounds concerning the late attempt of the filibusters to get Hayes out and put Tilden in There is a general doubt in the country about the matter ever having had any real strength and existence That such a plot existed is certain, and that it was not carried into effect is due to the foresight and wisdom of two southern leaders

The facts are these Early last summer and just before Tilden went to Europe he had a council of his most intimate personal friends to devise some means by which he might gain possession to the seat he believed himself entitled There were leading men from every state and it is reported that a member of the supreme bench of the United States was present The question was as to what legal process could be employed The main thing desired was that the suit (if such means were to be employed) when brought should be brought so that there should be immediate action Fields quo warranto bill would take too long The matter when commenced must be ended quickly Finally it was thought that the bill might be introduced in conformity with the constitutional provision giving the supreme court original jurisdiction in certain matters connected with state rights

A bill was to be passed permitting the state of Louisiana to come before the United States supreme court and declare that the electoral vote of that state had been wrongly counted for Hayes and apply for a writ commanding Mr Hayes to show by what warrant this was done It was thought that senators enough could be found to be induced under various influences to pass the bill If the Democratic caucus determined to try this method why of course would pass the house Mr Tilden got his barrel of money ready for business It is cautiously reported that Hendricks did not favor the revolutionary designs of his chief and went to Europe to be out of the way while it was being matured

A prominent Louisiana politician was to fix up things in Louisiana so that the state would come forward and make the demand for the writ There was a small hitch here A jury would be needed and where would such a jury be found? It was finally decided that the bill should allow the selection of a jury from the chief justices of the various states, and if they should be exhausted then from the associate justices When the matter was ready it was laid before five prominent southern men Much to the disgust of the managers they all refused to have anything to do with it, in any way They said that section wanted peace and this would certainly end in revolution and there had been enough of that No coaxing could make them change Very much disconcerted at the result, Mr Tilden used his utmost personal influence to change this, but it was without avail. When the administration sat still, and said "Kellogg go into the senate, if the move had then been promptly and adroitly made, perhaps it might have had a chance

But that time soon passed and although there was a general disgust with the course of the administration in this matter, it was not strong enough to induce the southern men to go into something very like treason. Enough to say, now is that those of the southern politicians contemptuously called Confederate Brigadiers, saved Mr Hayes throne and title for the second time.

While this account differs in several important details from any yet made public, it is strictly accurate at all points as regards the means by which Hayes was to be put out and Tilden put in

WAR ON IDAHO'S GOVERNOR

CHARGES AGAINST HIM BY A COMMITTEE OF THE BAR—AN EFFORT TO HAVE HIM DISBARRED AS AN ATTORNEY AND REMOVED FROM THE OFFICE OF GOVERNOR

A committee appointed by the supreme court of Idaho territory to investigate certain charges preferred against M Brayman governor of the territory and a member of the bar have reported divers and sundry things chief of which is that the governor in August last openly advised certain citizens of Alturas county "to ignore the courts as insecure and unsafe depositories of judicial power and submit their differences to self-constituted boards of arbitration or to miners meetings to adjust and secure the rights of life liberty and property" The committee report that "the honor of the bar the dignity of the court the authority of the executive the harmony and co operation of the legislative judicial and executive powers of the territory and the safety of the people which is the supreme law equally alike, and all require that the accusation against said M Brayman governor as aforesaid, and member of the bar as aforesaid, and with a view to his suspension and removal from the bar be planned under and by virtue of the statute in such cases made and provided, and that a committee made and selected by this court from the members of the bar, do make such accusation, and conduct such proceedings thereunder" The Boise Statesman joins in the attack upon the governor and says of him "He is the first of all the carpetbag-governors of Idaho, who failed to secure some sort of a following and support among the people of the territory He stands alone The good people of Idaho have weighed you, Governor Brayman in the balances with which they weigh all other men and they have found you lamentably weak and wanting in every essential requisite for the place you occupy and if you had the gift of seeing yourself as others see you or the capacity to understand the people, you would do now what you will find it necessary to do later" From all of which it is evident that the governor's enemies are sharp after him and mean to force him out of office

PRESERVING FRUIT

[illegible]

A letter from Harrington [illegible] The Wilmington [illegible] the magnitude of the [illegible] evaporating [illegible] conjectured when it is stated that no less than [illegible] preserving [illegible] [illegible] Louisiana with [illegible]

There are three methods of removing the natural juices from fruit—sun drying kiln or oven drying and evaporating.

The method of drying in the sun is well known Kiln or oven drying is better than sun drying, as the operation is more rapid The fruit also is kept from the attacks of flies so numerous during the fruit season and much less liable to be infested with worms Many of our dryers are only large ovens [illegible] used to deprive the fruit of moisture by the action of heat By this method the surface first [illegible]—nearly charred—while the inner portion of the fruit is soft When pressed together the moisture from within is absorbed by the charred surface and when not over charred the pieces of fruit will become soft and pliant

Evaporation is based on entirely different principles The surface is kept moist while the entire process is going on whether the evaporation is in a hot air chamber or in melted sugar When the evaporation of the natural juices is effected in melted sugar the process however is usually called conserving

Evaporation in a moist hot air chamber is based upon the well known scientific fact that a volume of air at the freezing point absorbs the one hundred and sixtieth part only of its own weight of moisture and that every 27 additional degrees of heat doubles its absorbing power Hence if air at 32° Fahrenheit, the freezing point absorbs the one hundred and sixtieth of its own weight of moisture at 59 deg Fahrenheit it will absorb the one-eightieth of its own weight of moisture; and at 86 deg Fahrenheit the one fortieth and at 113 deg Fahrenheit the one twentieth and at 140 deg Fahrenheit the one-tenth and at 167 deg, the one fifth and at 194 degrees the two fifths and at 221 deg Fahrenheit the four fifths or nearly its own weight while at 248 deg Fahrenheit heated air will absorb one and three-fifths its own weight.

Now put this heated body of air charged with more than its own weight of moisture in motion at the rate of 30 miles an hour or 880 feet per minute and the reason of evaporating fruit so rapidly is apparent. Every 100 cubic inches of air at 60 deg Fahrenheit and 30 inches to the barometer contains about 30 grains of water at 248 deg Fahrenheit not far from one fourth of an ounce of water A dryer chamber of the capacity of 20 cubic feet, according to this estimate will contain a temperature of 21 deg Fahrenheit fully 60 pounds of water 30 pounds of which has been absorbed from the heated fruit If the circulation is sufficient to empty this chamber every thirty minutes, 150 pounds of water is abstracted and carried away from a dryer full of fruit weighing 803 pounds every hour or 750 pounds are carried off in five hours about the time necessary to evaporate apples or peaches when in good condition

It will be seen from this that heat alone is not sufficient to produce evaporation It will not do it however great either on the earth or in an evaporation Stormy winds fulfill the pleasure of the Creator quite as effectively in drying up the surface of the earth after a heavy rain as do the burning rays of the sun The sun's heat alone on the moist earth would fill the air with a dense damp vapor, destructive alike to the health of animals and plants So, in the philosophic dryer, the fruit is put in at the bottom of a heated air chamber where a stream of cold air containing the fortieth part of its weight of moisture is introduced and driven through the fruit at the rate of 20 miles an hour and out of an escape loaded with more than its own weight of moisture The air in motion more than the heat causes the fruit to dry so rapidly and the rapidity of the process and the moisture in which the fruit is enveloped prevent oxidation or decay and gives the evaporated fruit when not over ripe so much the color of fresh fruit The shorter the time the fruit is in the dryer the more perfectly the oxygen is excluded and the brighter the color.

But the color of the fruit, however strongly it may recommend it to consumers is by far the least practical benefit in the process of evaporation. The nutritive value of evaporated fruit in consequence of the chemical changes during the process is its chief recommendation

It is still an open question whether the rapid change of starch into grape sugar in the hot air chamber of a philosophical evaporator may not be attended by the further change of grape into cane sugar though no actual analysis demonstrating the fact has yet been made

Crystals of sugar exist often in great abundance on the surface of the well preserved specimens of evaporated peaches and pears and possibly on apples though I have not observed it It certainly takes much less sugar to suitably sweeten evaporated than sun or kiln dried fruit of any kind

A SHOCKING CRIME

A MAN POISONED AND DIES IN GREAT AGONY.

[From the Walla Walla Watchman, Feb. 8th.]

Last Monday evening Charles Eckland a hard working industrious man died in his cabin, situated one and a quarter miles below Shellworth & Co's mill, under very suspicious and appalling circumstances Ed was in the employ of Shellworth & Co but would live in his cabin below the mill so as to hold his claim which he desired to preempt according to law Last Monday when near noon he started down to his cabin and found the door broken open also missed his teapot but thought nothing of it He then made a fire baked some bread fried a little meat and ate his dinner Soon thereafter he felt sick and was suddenly seized with an awful thirst. "I am poisoned" he soliloquised and started at once to go to his nearest neighbor Mr Smith for help. Before he reached the house his limbs broke from under him and he sank helpless to the ground. He cried for help and Mr Smith and his son came running to his assistance His limbs now [illegible] and he was seized with spasms; as soon as they subsided he felt easy and said "Smith I am poisoned I can tell by the bitter taste my victuals had when I ate them and by my fearful longing for water but I must not drink for I am gone the moment I do Take me back to my cabin and send for Shellworth They tenderly raised him up for he was in great agony Mr Cooper partner of Mr. Shellworth on hearing of the accident started down to visit the unfortunate man and as he neared the cabin he could hear his appealing pitiful cries. When out of spasms he could always speak and he again told Mr Cooper that he was poisoned with strychnine. When he learned that a doctor had been sent for he said "It is no use I am dying eat from nothing you find in this cabin for it is poisoned" After this, convulsion followed convulsion and the poor man died, amid pain and suffering which is simply indescribable Words written or spoken can never express it But who can be the guilty wretch who thus cruelly hurls a man into eternity without apparent cause or provocation? He is strongly suspected, we believe but will justice ever reach him?

MEETING OF INCORPORATORS.

At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon a meeting of the incorporators of the "Willamette Bridge Company was held at the office of M. C. George, Esq

Mr Wm Beck, president, called the meeting to order About fifteen of the incorporators were present.

Mr M C. George presented a bill which he had prepared for presentation to congress, asking the right of way for a bridge across the Willamette river connecting Portland with East Portland at some point south of Oak street. The bill was read and accepted and it was ordered to be sent to Washington by Hon D. P Thompson, who was instructed to present the same to the senators and representative from Oregon with the request that it be presented to congress at the earliest practicable day.

On motion an assessment of $5 on each incorporator was levied to defray the incidental expenses of preparing the bill to be presented to congress and also to meet other necessary expenses

An election of officers was held resulting as follows President W Beck Secretary, T J Matlock, Treasurer J L Atkinson

The meeting then adjourned subject to the call of the president.

A Silver Organ's Reasons for Remonetization.

[Chicago Tribune]

The most serious assault upon the credit of the nation is made by those who now insist upon changing the terms of the contract without the consent and against the wishes of the people, and to gratify the greed of a rapacious class of money lenders The menace to the public credit which this effort conveys is to be found in two circumstances, viz: (1) The disestablishment of silver and the exaction of payments in gold alone, which is bankrupting the country, reducing its resources and rendering the payment of debts impossible and (2) the tampering with the contract in the one case will serve as a precedent wherewith to justify desperate men to tamper with it again, and the next time to the injury of the money-lending class.

The Folly the Senate Sanctions.

[Burlington Hawkeye]

It is the height of folly after enduring all the inconveniences of resumption, to run away from its benefits, and begin anew the course of alternate inflation and depression, which has already cost us such miseries When we look over the period of nearly sixteen years since gold was as low as it is to day, it becomes a matter of utter amazement that any intelligent man would seek, at this juncture to undo what has been done and sacrificed by attempting to substitute a "cheaper" currency for the true standard of values Greenbacks now lack only 1¾ cents of a par valuation with gold. What folly, then, to arrest the approach to par, and again unsettle all commercial values!

Something that Won't be Done.

[From the Hartford Post]

Let the members of this Congress resign, come home and give the country a chance to say whether it desires to throw away the chance of funding the public debt for the sake of the saving that can be made by paying out silver at 89 cents for a dollar Let the people have an opportunity once more to say whether they will repudiate a part of the debt they were so ready to incur to save the union from dismemberment This they will not do for, although they obey the behests of the repudiators, they dare not let the question go naked before the country and take the verdict of the American people.

TUESDAY MORNING, FEB. 12, 1878.

OUR PECULIAR STATESMANSHIP.

A recent dispatch from Paris announces that the French senate has unanimously approved a bill passed by the assembly declining to resume the coinage of silver in that country. A report from the minister of finance explains that this action is made necessary by the prospect of silver remonetization in the United States at a rate which would place French silver coins at a disadvantage in the market, by the state of trade with India, and by the general condition of the money market of Europe. Strong intimations are given that this step is preparatory to adoption in France of the gold standard. The coming necessity is anticipated by making steady accumulations of gold in the bank of France. In fact French economists saw from the time Germany demonetized silver that this must come, and they are getting ready for it. And it is at this time, as has been well said, when all other great commercial countries are ridding themselves of the drag weight of a debased and fluctuating silver currency, that our wise financiers propose to make this country the chief receptacle of the discarded silver of Europe. The congress of the United States could do nothing whatever which would be so profitable to England as to fetter the commerce of this country with the silver shackles with which it is gravely proposed to encumber it in its competition with Great Britain for foreign trade. Not only England, but Germany and France, and all Europe, indeed, would be delighted if the American government would furnish them a market for the silver of which they are anxious to get rid. While all European countries are preparing to equip themselves with the superior instruments of commercial exchanges it is reserved for the backwoods statesmanship of Missouri, Ohio and Indiana to insist that this country shall place itself on a level with the semi-barbarous nations of Asia by adopting the obsolete monetary systems of a century ago, and fastening upon it the inferior and more cumbersome coinage which has been or is about to be discarded by all enlightened commercial countries. The refusal of France to coin any more silver comes just at this time when our demagogues are about to succeed, as they think, in forcing the only great commercial nation of the western hemisphere to load up with it in imitation of China and India. This is the company in which our peculiar statesmanship is placing us. It is to be regretted that Senator Grover of Oregon, who so greatly detests Chinese and has talked on the stump by the hour against them, should be found in the company of those who are trying to force on our country the Chinese monetary system, to the exclusion of that which the greatest commercial nations are all adopting.

ANTI SUBSIDY SENTIMENT.

On the 28th January there was a direct vote in the house of representatives on a resolution declaring that in the judgment of the house no further subsidy in money, bonds, lands, or pledges of the public credit, should be granted. It was adopted by a vote of 174 to 83; and of the latter nearly all were from the south, and voted against the resolution only on account of their desire to pass the Texas Pacific bill. This decisive vote has been accepted by the country generally as proof that no bill which proposes a new grant can pass. Hence it will be seen why and how the proposition for a grant for a Salt Lake road, coupled with the request for extension of the main line of the Northern Pacific, puts in jeopardy the whole project. In order to get the bill through in this shape it becomes necessary to assume that the house will recede from its emphatic declaration against further grants. This is the hazard which we of the northwest who want aid for a railroad may well fear to meet. But out of all this difficulty there might be a very simple way. Separate the two parts of the scheme. Put in a distinct bill for the Salt Lake grant, and let us get it through if we can. But it is not wise to overload an enterprise that may succeed if it stands alone, with another project which is sure to encounter great opposition, and which in all probability will bring defeat on the whole undertaking. The house committee has heard the arguments of all the parties, and in pursuance of the heavy vote given by the house against further subsidies, has refused to entertain the demand for a grant for the proposed road to Salt Lake; while it has assented to renewal for the main line of the Northern Pacific simply because it proposes no new grant. In conformity with the desire to retrench, the branch to Puget Sound has been cut off. When all the circumstances are considered it must be admitted that joinder of the two propositions puts the whole at great hazard. And the risk is quite needless. Let trial be made for a separate grant for a road to Salt Lake. Oregon wants such grant. But it does not want a result which is seen to be within reach to be lost by making a project which is likely to bring the whole to defeat an inseparable part of it.

SECRET ARTICLES.

Great Britain just now is excessively troubled about certain supposed secret articles in the negotiation between Russia and Turkey. Suspecting the existence of conditions which may assail her traditional policy, or which may injuriously affect her national and commercial interests, she naturally feels much concern about it and tries all the avenues of information or inquiry that might lead to the knowledge she desires to obtain. There is no wonder. She has had very severe experience on this very point. Certain secret articles stipulated between Turkey and Russia in the convention of Ackerman in 1826 laid the foundation for Russian interference in the affairs of the Ottoman empire and opened the way for all the encroachments of Russia since that time, which England has hitherto felt obliged to arrest at infinite expense of trouble, treasure and blood. The revolt of the janizaries threatening the overthrow of the sultan's government, Russia at the critical moment adroitly pressed her claim for a right of protectorate over the Christian subjects of the Porte, and it was granted. By a secret agreement the Russian demands were conceded without reservation, though Turkey, as it subsequently appeared, had no intention of adhering to her engagements; but the convention established a ground for Russian interference as between the Porte and its own subjects, and thus prepared the way for Russian interposition, which has been employed on repeated occasions heretofore, and again in the present war. It was on a pretext of delivering the Christians of Turkey from the cruelty and oppression of the Ottoman government that Russia engaged in the war that has now led her to Constantinople; and the secret articles of the treaty of Ackerman, of 1826, are the basis which supports her claim.

Again, in 1833, when Turkey was weakened by the Egyptian revolt, Russia once more seized the opportunity to acquire an ascendency in the councils of the Porte; and so skillfully was the diplomacy conducted, and so rigorous were its exactions, that it proved in the end to have been much easier for the Ottoman government to obtain deliverance from the hostility of its rebellious vassals, formidable as the rebellion was, than to emancipate itself from the still more dangerous protectorate of its zealous and officious friends. By the treaty of Unkiar-Skelessi Russia bound Turkey not to permit any war vessel of a foreign power to enter the Dardanelles from the Mediterranean on any pretext whatever; and thus, while Russia might be pressing on Turkey from the north and assuming to enforce her right to interfere under the former treaty in the internal affairs of the Turkish empire, the latter was prohibited from receiving help from abroad and was placed in a position which virtually made it a tributary power to the Czar. The existence of this secret treaty, in spite of utmost efforts to conceal it, soon became known. It gave alarm to England, and from that time the eastern question swelled up to colossal proportions till it culminated in the Crimean war.

Taught by her experience England therefore naturally suspects a secret treaty between Russia and Turkey at this time, and is extremely anxious to ascertain what its articles are. The secrecy observed and the evasion practiced by both give strongest possible grounds for the suspicion. As the leading commercial nation and maritime power of the world, it becomes England's business to know.

A NEW PARTY.

Eastern Democrats are constantly taking a more pronounced position against the western inflationists. Disorganization of parties as a result of the financial discussion is proceeding rapidly. The Republican party is escaping it but little better than the Democratic. The Indianapolis Journal, a Republican organ, thinks there is going to be a new party, and it sees signs of its formation already in Indiana and other middle states. This party, the Journal says, will take Hendricks or some other man like him for a leader; will drive out all the honest men from the Democratic party and attract all the demagogues from the Republican party, unite the south and west into a scheme of multiform and variegated rascality, and capture the country in order to ruin and plunder it. The "new party" is going to enfold in its far-reaching embrace all who believe in the remonetization of silver, all who want specie resumption indefinitely postponed, all who want the national banks abolished, all who desire an unlimited inflation of irredeemable currency, all who believe in communism, all who want the army reduced one-half, all in favor of subsidizing the Texas Pacific railroad with government bonds, and constructing the Mississippi levees out of the national treasury for the benefit of private land owners, all who want to pay all the fraudulent "war claims" presented from the south, all who demand that the government shall give every male adult $500 who will "go west" and settle on government lands, and all who are in favor of fixing the maximum rate of interest at 4 per cent. under penalty of forfeiture of the principal. All the advocates of these and similar measures, if brought together, would make a very big party. Probably it would be big enough to carry the country. Then if congress would afford the full measure of relief by giving the country whisky entirely free of tax, and laying a tax on every industrious and temperate man's income, there would seem to be nothing left in the way of full restoration of national prosperity.

We find in the Bulletin's report of one of the Workingmen's meetings in San Francisco recently, that in the selection of a committee for some purpose, a part of the committee was made up, when some one in the assembly said, "We have an Irishman, an Englishman, a German, a Frenchman, now let us add a Scandinavian," which was carried; when some one, with the utmost sarcasm, said: "Now, hadn't we better add an American to our party," when cries of "No! No!" arose from all parts of the house and the American was left off.

The number of volumes in the library of congress is 331,118. There are about 110,000 pamphlets. About 40,000 volumes of the books belong to the law department of the library. Increase of books during the past year has been above 20,000.

A CARD.

McMINNVILLE, Or., Feb. 8 1878.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Please publish the following in your paper, the DAILY OREGONIAN, and also the WEEKLY, and thereby you will greatly oblige an imposed upon citizen of this town. On or about the 4th of January last the daily Bee and Standard, as I understand from reliable citizens of this county, I have not yet been able to read or see the article myself, as said papers are very scarce here, both of those papers published under "police news" or "police court news": "That Louis Delschneider had been arrested in your city by the police for using obscene language towards a young lady in the public streets of your city, and brought before the police judge and fined etc." all of which I pronounce a base lie and falsehood, purely fabricated by some one. I hope for my relation and friends' sake that those papers above named will vindicate me of said above charges, as it is doing me and my friends a great injury in business, etc. I have been in Oregon 24 years, and 18 years of that time I have lived in your city, and being in business all of said time, and have nearly all of my friends and relations living in your city at present, and there are no records to show in your city that I have ever been arrested or brought before a police judge on any kind of charge or charges. I have lived in Yamhill county and in this town for six years and have never been arrested for any crime of whatsoever nature. Now as to the arrest in Portland: I will say that I was in Portland at the time on business and was stopping at the Occidental Hotel during the few days of my visit to your city at that time, but was not arrested nor about to be arrested by any one on any charge of crime whatsoever. I hope both the papers which published the item of arrest of L. Delschneider will correct their mistake. LOUIS DELSCHNEIDER.

CITY.

DEATH OF MR. ARNOLD.—This commun was shocked yesterday morning by the pa ful intelligence that Mr. Emmons Arnold, old and highly esteemed citizen of Portlan had died suddenly. For several days p Mr. Arnold had not been feeling very w but he was able to be around. Sunday nig he retired to his bed feeling about as usu At half past 2 o'clock A. M. he was taken wi rheumatism of the heart, and died very s denly. He rose up in bed as he felt the attac coming on, but fell back and expired almo instantly. Mr. Arnold was aged 62 yea He has resided in this city several year where, by his integrity, industry and hono able conduct, he made many warm frien and won the confidence of the entire co munity. Deceased was a consistent Christia gentleman, and in all the relations of life exemplary citizen. His sudden death will greatly regretted. At the time of his deat Mr. Arnold was school clerk for district N 1, a position he filled efficiently and to t satisfaction of all. Funeral will take pla to-day at 10 o'clock A. M. from the Congreg tional church. Friends of the family are co dially invited to attend.

MR. AND MRS. BATES.—We are in receipt several copies of the Brisbane (Australi Courier from which it is learned that Mr. a Mrs. F. M. Bates are now playing at Queen land Theater in that city. Mr. Bates is lessee and manager, and Mrs. Bates is dire tress of the theatre mentioned. On the 27 of last December the fairy extravaganza e titled "The King of the Peacocks," was pe formed. In this piece Mrs. Bates personat the character of "Argus, the Brilliant Eyed In speaking of the performance the Cour says: "The word crowded would far fro convey the true state of the audience at t Queensland Theater last evening, the lar room being densely packed. Mrs. Bates ve condescendingly assumed the leading part the burlesque of 'Argus, the King o' the Pe cocks," and though burlesque is considerab below this lady's line of business it cou not be better filled. Her rich voice togeth with suitable dress was very effective a thoroughly gained the favor of the audienc Mr. and Mrs. Bates have many warm frien in Portland who will be gratified to learn their prosperity.

REMOVING OBSTRUCTIONS.—A gentleman ju from Powell's valley informs us that t farmers in that section are agitating the pr ject of removing the drift wood which has a cumulated at the mouth of the Sandy rive Recently the project has been talked of a appears to meet with favorable considerati among the farmers. The object of removi these obstructions is to enable small stea boats to ascend the Sandy, which it is impo sible for them to do at present. For yea drift wood has accumulated at the mouth that stream until it cannot be navigated Small steamers it is said can ascend the Sand several miles during the winter months. T remove the obstructions which beset navig tion will not require a large sum of mone and it is said the required amount can easi be raised among those living in that sectio of the country. The opening of this strea will be of great benefit to that whole secti as it will afford an easy and cheap means transporting agricultural products to mark

CITY.

DEATH OF MR ARNOLD —This community was shocked yesterday morning by the painful intelligence that Mr Emmons Arnold an old and highly esteemed citizen of Portland had died suddenly For several days past Mr Arnold had not been feeling very well but he was able to be around Sunday night he retired to his bed feeling about as usual At half past 2 o clock A M he was taken with rheumatism of the heart and died very suddenly He rose up in bed as he felt the attack coming on but fell back and expired almost instantly Mr Arnold was aged 62 years He has resided in this city several years where, by his integrity industry and honorable conduct, he made many warm friends and won the confidence of the entire community Deceased was a consistent Christian gentleman and in all the relations of life an exemplary citizen His sudden death will be greatly regretted At the time of his death Mr Arnold was school clerk for district No 1 a position he filled efficiently and to the satisfaction of all Funeral will take place to day at 10 o clock A M from the Congregational church Friends of the family are cordially invited to attend

MR AND MRS BATES —We are in receipt of several copies of the Brisbane (Australia) Courier from which it is learned that Mr and Mrs F M. Bates are now playing a Queensland Theater in that city Mr Bates is the lessee and manager, and Mrs Bates is directress of the theatre mentioned On the 27th of last December the fairy extravaganza entitled "The King of the Peacocks" was performed In this piece Mrs. Bates personated the character of "Argus, the Brilliant Eyed" In speaking of the performance the Courier says "The word crowded would far from convey the true state of the audience at the Queensland Theater last evening, the large room being densely packed Mrs Bates very condescendingly assumed the leading part in the burlesque of "Argus, the King of the Peacocks," and though burlesque is considerably below this lady's line of business it could not be better filled Her rich voice, together with suitable dress was very effective and thoroughly gained the favor of the audience." Mr and Mrs Bates have many warm friends in Portland who will be gratified to learn of their prosperity

REMOVING OBSTRUCTIONS.—A gentleman just from Powell's valley informs us that the farmers in that section are agitating the project of removing the drift wood which has accumulated at the mouth of the Sandy river Recently the project has been talked of, and appears to meet with favorable consideration among the farmers The object of removing these obstructions is to enable small steam boats to ascend the Sandy, which it is impossible for them to do at present For years drift wood has accumulated at the mouth of that stream until it cannot be navigated Small steamers it is said can ascend the Sandy several miles during the winter months To remove the obstructions which beset navigation will not require a large sum of money, and it is said the required amount can easily be raised among those living in that section of the country. STOPPED BY HIGHWAYMEN

[illegible]

PARTICULARS OF THE ROBBERY OF MAJOR [illegible] OWLER U S PAYMASTER

From a recent number of the Weekly Arizona Star the following particulars are obtained of the robbery of Major Towler, of which previous mention has been made

Last week we alluded to the fact that Paymaster Towler U S army en route to Tucson was overhauled by robbers while traveling in an ambulance from Yuma to Tucson He was stopped by three highwaymen one of whom had his face covered with a handkerchief the other two having their faces blackened Two miles this side of the chimneys known as the Wells Major T was carrying his little girl following up the ambulance and when near it found himself confronted by two of the robbers He at once took in the situation and putting the little girl to the ground intended to approach the ambulance to help out his family but was prevented from doing so as the robbers thought the movement was for the purpose of obtaining arms The three robbers stood on the near side of the lead mules and one leveled his Henry rifle for Mr Vedder paymaster's clerk and the driver After a moment's pause the apparent leader, who had been hidden in the edge of the well, came forward and took charge of the lines mounting the boot and drove off taking a direction back and toward the mountains near Gila. Mr Vedder and driver followed and behind them came the major and his family, all being covered by the two robbers and their rifles at full cock After walking a little over a quarter of a mile they came to a halt and the plundering began Every piece of baggage was opened and unpacked expecting to find as the captain asserted a cool quarter of a million in greenbacks He called Mr Vedder to his assistance and he tells many a joke that transpired during the search After an hour's fruitless search they were rewarded with almost nothing as they did not strike the expected bonanza merely getting about $260 from the major and $10 from Mr Vedder

During all this time the tallest of the robbers and as the major says the biggest coward, apparently had his Sharp's carbine at full cock constantly eyeing him not allowing him to move in the least. After a short consultation among the gentlemen, they informed Major Towler they would be obliged to take three of his mules, as they had only two horses for three of them and one of these worn out and unserviceable. After selecting the mules Major Towler prevailed upon the leader to let him have the broncho as with these he could get along until additional transportation arrived This was consented to and everything being repacked and the broncho as off wheeler, the ambulance started at the fastest possible speed for Maricopa Wells, to give the information After the robbers had concluded their fruitless search and being somewhat hurried by Major Towler to get through and out of his way, the captain of the gang informed him that he possibly would be obliged to detain them two or three hours until the stage had passed as they intended to rob it Major T told him he need not be troubled as he did not care whether he robbed the stage or not and that he was willing to camp a short distance off where they said he could find water This seemed satisfactory, and he was allowed to go on

After an hour's ride Major Towler met George Fields at the head of his train, and told him what had happened, and in about half an hour came the stage He told the driver what the robbers intended to do and after a short consultation concluded to take back Wells Fargo & Co's treasure box which was landed safely into the hands of Mr Moore at Maricopa Wells.

AMUSEMENTS

THEATER.—"Ishavogue" was repeated last evening to a good audience Mr Ward appeared in the leading role to superior advantage supported by the full company Following "Ishavogue" came "Toodles" in which appeared Commodore Nutt and his brother Major The Commodore personated the character of the inexpressible Toodles, and little Mrs Inflaus as "Mrs T" Although there was a noticeable disparity in the matter of size they made the part so irresistibly comic and droll that the auditors could only sit and laugh until their sides fairly ached Mrs Imhaus deserves a compliment for the very creditable manner in which she sustained the character Commodore Nutt, in the drunken scene, was inimitable

To night a very attractive bill will be offered—Mr Ward's sensational and emotional drama in four acts "The Winning Hand," Mr Ward will personate the character of "Harold Thornton, and Miss Osborne "Grace Dashwood," supported by the full company During this piece Commodore and Major Nutt appear in a number of their specialties

LETTER FROM SAN FRANCISCO

SAN FRANCISCO Feb 7 1878

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

To a stranger—a Webfoot —this busy bustling city ever presents a panorama of interest and entertainment Sights and incidents regarded as common by old residents prove oftentimes interesting and attractive to a newcomer During my brief visit in this place I have spent an enjoyable time noting the [illegible] of humanity on the streets the excited crowds of brokers vociferating in the stock exchange and many things familiar to metropolitan eyes such as the old woman peanut peddler and vendors of articles from wagons around the streets with their curious jargon and have visited the Chinese quarters [illegible] palatial mansions of wealthy millionaires on Nob Hill besides traveling to the outskirts of the city and viewing beautiful sights of land and sea from the summits of adjacent hills

I have not time nor disposition to describe the

MAGNIFICENT HOTELS

And public buildings that San Franciscans are so justly proud of Suffice it to say that the hotels are grand and immense structures with all needful appurtenances for the comfort of guests, and that the public buildings and private residences rank with any for elegance beauty and imposing architectural display Several new buildings of magnitude are under way at present and building is pretty lively in the way of residences

TRADE

Cannot be said to be brisk In some specialties there is a marked increase in business but generally over the town trade is reported slack Hopes are entertained of a speedy revival and the season's stock of goods have commenced to arrive pretty largely We find business active with Messrs Huntington Hopkins & Co Meeker James & Co R Patrick & Co Holt Bros, Haste & Kirk and sundry other large firms while the foundries and mills are kept very busy all betokening a steady increase of trade in the near future

THE LABOR QUESTION

The so called agitators have held several meetings lately The largest crowd usually assemble on a sand lot, where they are addressed by speakers representing many opinions and views on some matters, but apparently unanimous on their own coined statement "The Chinese must go" Several branch and ward clubs have been organized for the protection of various local industries Clubs have been also started and equipped in some interior towns with results not the most satisfactory in some instances There appear to be two or three leaders of faction and it seems impossible for all the main clubs to coalesce and work harmoniously A local paper reports the arrest in Sacramento of Grinnell president of Kearney's workingmen's club of that city, accused of beating his wife and there is a possibility of an open rupture to be constantly widened, between the Kearney clubs proper and his prodigal co laborers

A Chicago Times correspondent writing from here makes some startling assertions to the effect that Kearney and his associates had arranged a plan for the capture and bombardment of the Chinese quarters and forcing the heathen to return to their native land He gives other specific details regarding the capture of Fort Alcatraz the obstructing of the channel leading below the Mare Island navy yard to prevent war ships from taking a hand in the grand hudoo, and mentions other intended movements of the agitators The papers here are inclined to regard the story as sensational and overwrought though some are apprehensive of revolutionary acts by these laborers, unless a greater degree of moderation is maintained both in action and in language It would startle this city almost if the number of workingmen's names was published, who are not affiliating with the present movements, It seems to be a general and a grievous error to presume that there are no workingmen but those who toil with pick and shovel, or have the harder physical labor to perform.

Prominent officials are energetic in their efforts to right the present labor movement and with unity of purpose and action a peaceful settlement of this vexed question is confidently expected

FREE LUNCHES.

At the churches free for hungry poor, have been spread for a week or two past and many needy ones supplied The example set by one church was quickly followed by others and now private individuals and benevolent societies have taken up the good work Most of the visitors appear to be of the industrious, honest class of laborers, which is noteworthy and significant

Social matters are enlivening Very enjoyable club parties have been held recently besides social meetings at residences Literary societies are a very entertaining attraction here as well as beneficial

DRAMATIC

At the California theater "The Old Corporal" is the attraction Signor Majeroni assuming the part of Corporal Simon, in a deserving manner, and showing excellent dramatic powers A play entitled "Jealousy" is announced for Thursday evening At Baldwin's opera house, Fred Lyster's Opera Bouffe is attracting a liberal share of public patronage, and deserves the same Miss Catharine Lewis is meriting some compliments by her sweet singing and charming acting, and with all the troupe may expect with consistency that their efforts to please the musical public will be fully appreciated There is some kind of a female minstrel show at the Bush street theater which is numerously attended Admission is only nominal New attractions expected ere many weeks

A crowded house may be anticipated at the Saturday matinee when Uncle Tom's Cabin will be produced in the Grand Opera House One hundred genuine colored jubilee singers are advertised to participate At the same place Sunday evening there will be a benefit to Miss Rose Moss, in her play "Broken Chains" A prominent lady in social circles is announced to appear during the week sometime in a play composed by a local dramatist Prof. N Sheppard lectured to large audiences on "Holding the Tongue" and "Dickens" The latter lecture was masterly and full of interest

An interesting temperance movement is daily gaining strength in the city The blue ribbon brigade are the instigators and assisted by coloborers, they are winning crowds to the ranks of temperance

PERSONAL

It may be of some interest to Oregonians to know the whereabouts of some of the "webfoot" boys of Auld Lang Syne, so I note some names

Geo Herren formerly of Salem is attending a business college here

F J Kee is acting as bookkeeper in a prominent firm

The Jacobi brothers have lucrative positions in the telegraph company's employ

Jimmy Burk and Wm Cook old typos work in the Globe office

Adolphus Richardson is selling machinery and is a rustler

Ed Terry solicits ads for the Chronicle

Allen Griffith is studying medicine with good success

Johnny Harned is still here though it is stated his health is failing

Willis Dunway is reported working himself down almost to a shadow in the Call office

Mr F L Busch now has his headquarters in this place

T M Lockwood and Fred Frosch are employed in the Call office

Geo Rines energetic George is here expecting to resume type setting in a few days

W S Lively for a while manager of the Bulletin (Portland) has a job office on Clay street

Aleck Smith has a time case on the Chronicle M J Kelly and Jos Kernan are also at their old trade in different offices

Many Portlanders remember with kindly feelings Mrs J J Church and T J Pease who are now residents of this city Mrs Church is still suffering from the effects of the fracture of her arm some years ago Mr Pease has a position in the [illegible] and is as handsome as ever

James O Meara is on the editorial staff of the Post

Mr Hugh Small formerly THE OREGONIAN's [illegible] Northwest correspondent is the [illegible] of the [illegible] and well distributes the [illegible] upon him

[illegible] live here [illegible] in their efforts to alleviate suffering and carry happiness to desolate homes

Portlanders and Oregonians are not scarce in [illegible]

ART

There is on exhibition here an elegant painting by Rosenthal entitled "A Seminary Alarmed"

There has been some inquiry about the whereabouts of the schooner Rosco which sailed to find hidden treasures some months ago and about which trip there was considerable publicity

Store and shop windows are flooded with valentines

We are inclined to believe Oregon beauty outranks that of California We've to visit Oakland yet, though where rumor says beauty reigns among the ladies unrivaled

Mr L Whitworth acting as a representative of the West Shore came down on the last trip of the Elder

Geo Robinson formerly a clerk in Clark & Henderson's store has struck it rich He married a wealthy widow here and though there is a slight disparity of age a prosperous future is vouchsafed Some Portland belles will doubtless weep at this news

In my next I will describe visits to several prominent places HALCYON

NASAL CATARRH, LUNG AND BRONCHIAL AFFECTIONS POSITIVELY CURED

THE PUBLIC MUST KNOW THE TRUTH—UNPARALLELED SUCCESS OF DR SOUVILLE MATHIEU THE EMINENT FRENCH PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON WITH HIS WONDERFUL INVENTION THE PARIS SPIROMETER

As we know Dr Souville Mathieu as a scientific gentleman we allow him to use our columns to advertise the number of miraculous cures which have been effected by him

Everybody knows the doctor's mode of treatment which is by the use of an instrument which conveys Medicated Inhalations direct to the seat of the disease We want to be understood when we say Medicated Inhalations Medicated Inhalations are the elements of medicines combined with Atmospheric air Dr Souville Mathieu will publish in these columns from time to time certificates of great and permanent cures of some of the oldest and best citizens of Oregon

They consider it their duty for the benefit of mankind as the doctor is recognized as the benefactor of suffering humanity, being able to cure cases which have defied the skill of able physicians

For the benefit of Oregon people the doctor will treat cases from $3 to $10 a day This is to give facilities to the poor as well as the rich

To convince the public of the truth we will give a few names of parties who have been cured by the doctor after their cases had been given up as incurable by all other physicians.

A remarkable cure of James B Leavett, of Salem Oregon Nasal Catarrh of ten years standing He was so bad as to be unable to work After three days treatment by the Paris Spirometer he was able to resume his work He is now permanently cured

Another very remarkable cure

E L Bristow Esq editor of the Salem Mercury Nasal Catarrh of twelve years standing, permanently cured Can be referred to any time

Mr. Jackson of the Statesman office at Salem Neuralgia in the head for several years

Wm Leavett, Salem Nasal Catarrh of twenty five years standing now cured

Mrs Hannah Donaldson of Salem Neuralgia in the head several years relieved in three days

Here is the most remarkable cure of all Mrs Hensdale of Salem for affections of the Bronchial and Lung tissues so bad that she could not dress herself now permanently cured Had been given up by all the physicians of Salem

Mr Walter Moss, editor Salem Mercury Neuralgia in head of twelve years standing now permanently cured

Mrs. S F Matthews, of the Chemeketa hotel, Neuralgia in head for several years cured by four treatments of the Paris Spirometer

Mrs F D Towl of Salem Neuralgia in head of six years' standing One treatment gave entire relief

Here is a most wonderful cure Mr J C Adkins of Salem paralysis of six years standing cured in twelve days This is a business man of Salem to whom any one can refer

Mrs J C Adkins Nasal Catarrh and Bronchial Affections eight years standing After two weeks treatment with the Doctor's Paris Spirometer she was permanently cured

We have not space to mention all of Dr Souville Mathieu's wonderful cures but will give one case where he has won the esteem of scientific gentlemen

Dr Baily, of Corvallis, Oregon, one of the most scientific men in the state, has trusted his wife and daughter and a great many friends under the treatment of Dr Souville Mathieu

THE NEW CHURCH DOCTRINE

BY WILL CARLETON

There's come a singular doctrine, wife,
Into our church to-day
These curious words are what the new
Young preacher had to say
That literal everlastin' fire
Was mostly in our eye
That sinners dead, if they desire,
Can go another try
He doubted if a warmer clime
Than this world could be proved
The little snip—I fear, some time
He'll get his doubts removed.

I've watched my duty, straight an' true
An' tried to do it well,
Part of the time kept heaven in view
An' part steered clear o' hell;
An' now half of this work is naught,
If I must list to him,
An' this 'ere devil I have fought
Was only just a whim;
Vain are the dangers I have braved
The sacrifice they cost;
For what fun is it to be saved,
If no one else is lost?

Just think—suppose, when once I view
The heaven I've toiled to win
A lot of unsaved sinners, too
Comes walkin' grandly in
An' acts to home, same as if they
Had read their titles clear
An' looks at me as if to say
We're glad to see you here
As if to say, "While you have b'en
So fast to toe the mark,
We waited till it rained, an' then
Got tickets for the ark!"

Yet there would be some in that crowd
I'd rather like to see
My boy Jack—it must be allowed,
There was no worse than he!
I've always felt somewhat to blame
In several different ways
That he lay down on thorns o' shame
To end his boyhood's days
An' I'd be willin' to endure
If that the Lord thought best,
A minute's quite hot temperature
To clasp him to my breast.

Old Captain Barnes was evil's son—
With heterodoxy crammed,
I used to think he'd be the one
If any one was damned,
Still when I saw a lot of poor
That he had clothed and fed
Cry desolately round his door
As soon as he was dead,
There came a thought I couldn't control
That in some nether land
I'd like to meet that scorched-up soul,
An' shake it by the hand.

Poor Jennie Willis, with a cry
Of hopeless sad distress
Sank sudden down, one night, to die,
All in her ball room dress
She had a precious little while
To pack up an' away,
She even left her sweet good smile—
'Twas on the face next day
Her soul went off unclothed by even
One stitch of saving grace
How could she hope to go to heaven,
An' start from such a place?

But once when I lay sick an' weak
She came, an' begged to stay
She kissed my faded wrinkled cheek—
She soothed my pain away
She brought me sweet bouquets of flowers
As fresh as her young heart—
Through many long an' tedious hours
She played a Christian part;
An' ere I long will stand aroun'
The singin' saints among
I'll try to take some water down
To cool poor Jennie's tongue.

But tears can never quench my creed,
Nor smooth the God's righteous frown
Though all the preachers learn to read
Their Bibles upside down
I hold my Bible up with care
To shield my eyes from sin,
An' coax the Lord with daily prayer,
To call poor wanderers in;
But if the sinners won't draw nigh
By the salvation's plan,
I'll have to stand an' see 'em try
To dodge hell if they can.
—N. Y. Times.

SAVED BY A SONG

[From London Society]

It was Christmas Eve. A real, old-fashioned Christmas, with the snow lying thick on the ground and still falling heavily, with a touch of fog in the air. It was past ten o'clock and the streets and lanes of the great city were all but deserted. Merchant and broker, clerk and warehouseman, and the rest of the busy crowd who had thronged those streets by day had one by one drifted away to their houses, and the lofty warehouses loomed black and forbidding over the silent thoroughfares. Here and there the gleam from a solitary window struggled ineffectually with the outer darkness, and served but to bring into stronger relief the general gloom and solitude.

And nowhere was the darkness deeper or the sense of desolation more profound than in St Winifred's court. St Winifred's is one of those queer little alleys which intersect the heart of eastern London, and consists, with one exception, of houses let out as offices, and utterly deserted at night. The court is bounded on one side by St Winifred's church while in one corner stands a quaint old house occupying a nearly triangular piece of ground, and forming the exception we have referred to, having been for many years the residence of St Winifred's organist, Michael Fray.

Many of these ancient churches still remain in odd nooks and corners of the city, relics of a time when London merchants made their homes in the same spot whereon they earned their daily bread, worshipping on Sunday in the narrow aisles, and when their time came asking no better resting place than beneath those venerable flagstones on which they had knelt in life. The liberality of ancient founders and benefactors has left many of these old churches richly endowed, and still, Sunday after Sunday, rector and curate mount their respective desks, and struggle through their weekly task, but portly aldermen and dignified burgesses no longer fill the highbacked pews. A wheezy verger and pew opener, with a dozen or so of ancient men and women, caretakers of adjoining warehouses or offices too often form the only congregation.

St. Winifred's, like many of its sister edifices, though small in extent is a noble monument of ecclesiastical architecture, having been designed by an architect of world wide fame, and boasting stained glass windows of richest color and exquisite design, and oaken carvings of flower and leaf, to which the touch of a master has imparted all but living beauty. The western extremity of the church abuts upon a narrow lane, on a week day one of the busiest in the city; but on Sundays the broad portal is lying open in vain, for its invitation is addressed to empty streets and deserted houses.

The only sign of life, on this Christmas eve, in St. Winifred's court, was a faint gleam of flickering firelight proceeding from one of the windows of the quaint three cornered house in which Michael Fray passed his solitary existence. Many years before the period of our story, the same month had taken from him wife and child, and since that time Michael Fray had lived desolate, his only solace being the rare old organ, the friend and companion of his lonely hours. The loss of his wife and daughter had left him without kith or kin. His father and mother had died in his early youth, an only brother, a gifted but wayward youth, had in his early life run away to sea, and had there found a watery grave. Being thus left alone in the world Michael Fray's love for music which had always been the most marked feature of his character, had become intensified into an absolute passion. Evening after evening, when darkness had settled on the city, and none could complain that his music interfered with business or distracted attention from the nobler clink of gold, he was accustomed to creep quietly into the church and there "talk to himself" as he called it, at the old organ which answered him back again with a tender sympathy and power of consolation which no mere human listener could ever have afforded. The organ of St Winifred's was of comparatively small size, and made but scanty show of pipes or pedals, but the blackened case and yellow, much worn keys had been fashioned by the cunning brain and skillful fingers of "Father Smith" himself and never had the renowned old organ builder turned out a more skillful piece of workmanship. And Michael Fray, by use of years and loving tender study, had got by heart every pipe and stop in the rare old instrument and had acquired an almost magical power in bringing out its tenderest tones and noblest harmonies.

Hear him this Christmas eve, as he sits before the ancient keyboard, one feeble candle dimly glimmering over the well worn page before him, flickering weirdly over the ancient carving and calling into momentary life the effigies of mitered abbot and mailed crusader. A feeble old man, whose sands of life have all but run out, a sadly weak and tremulous old man, with shaking hands and dim, uncertain eyes. But when they were placed upon those yellow keys, the shaking hands shake no longer, the feeble sight finds no labor in those remembered pages. Under the touch of Michael Fray's deft fingers the ancient organ becomes instinct with life and harmony. The grand old masters lend their noblest strains, and could they revisit earth, need ask no better interpreter. From saddest wail of sorrow to sweetest strain of consolation—from the dirge for the loved and lost to the pæan of the jubilant victor—each shade of human passion, each tender message of divine encouragement [illegible] in succession under the magic of that old man's touch. Thus sometimes borrowing the song of other singers, sometimes wandering into quaint, fanciful harmonies, the spontaneous overflow of his own rare genius, Michael Fray sat and made music charming his sorrows into temporary sleep.

Time crept on, but the player heeded it not till the heavy bell in the tower above [illegible] head boomed forth the hour of midnight and recalled him to reality again. With two or three more [illegible] wailing chords he brought his improvisation to an end.

"Dear me," he said, with a heavy sigh, "Christmas again! Christmas again! How many times, I wonder, Will this will be the last, and yet Christmas comes again and finds me here still all alone. Dear, dear. First poor Dick, and then my darling Alice and little Nell, all gone. Young and bright and merry—all taken. And I here am I—old and friendless and yet I live on, live on. Well, I suppose God knows best." While thus thinking aloud, the old man was apparently searching for something among his music books and now produced an ancient page of manuscript, worn almost to fragments but pasted, for preservation, on a piece of paper of later date. "Yes, here it is, poor Dick's Christmas song. What a sweet voice he had, dear boy! If he had only lived—but there! I'm murmuring again. God's will be done!"

He placed the music on the desk before him and after a moment's pause began in tender flutelike tones to play the melody, at the same time crooning the words in a feeble voice. He played one verse of the song, then stopped and drew his sleeves across his eyes. The sense of his desolation appeared to come anew upon him. He seemed to shrink down doubly old, doubly feeble, doubly forsaken—when, lo! a marvel! Suddenly from the lonely street without, in that chill midnight came the sound of a violin and a sweet young voice singing the self same words to the self same tender air—the song written by his dead and gone brother forty years ago.

The effect on Michael Fray was electrical. For a moment he staggered, but caught at the keyboard before him and held it with a convulsive grasp.

"Am I dreaming, or are my senses leaving me? Poor Dick's Christmas carol, and I could almost swear the voice is my own lost Nellie's. Can this be death at last? And are the angels welcoming me home with the song I love so dearly? No! surely either I am going mad or that is a real living voice. But whose—whose? Heaven help me find it out!" And with his whole frame quivering with excitement—without pausing even to close the organ or to extinguish his flickering candle—the old man groped his way down the narrow, winding stair which led to the street, and hurriedly closing the door behind him, stepped forth bareheaded into the snowy night.

For some hours before Michael Fray was startled as we have related by the mysterious echo of his brother's song, an old man and a young girl had been making their way citywards from the south-eastern side of London. Both walked wearily, as though they had tramped from a long distance, and once or twice the young girl wiped away a tear though she strove hard to hide it from her companion and forced herself to speak with a cheerfulness in strange contrast with her sunken cheeks and tattered gait. Every now and then, in passing through the more frequented streets, they would pause, and the man, who carried a violin, would strike up some old ballad tune with a vigor and power of execution which even his frost nipped fingers and weary limbs could not wholly destroy; while the girl, with a sweet, though very sad voice, accompanied him with the appropriate words. But their attempts were miserably unproductive. In such bitter weather few who could help it would stay away from their warm firesides, and those whom stern necessity kept out of doors seemed only bent on dispatching their several tasks, and to have no thought or time to expend on a couple of wandering tramps singing by the roadside. Still they toiled on, every now and then making a fresh "pitch" at some lively corner, only too often ordered to "move on" by a stern policeman. As they grew nearer to the city and the hour grew later the passers-by became fewer and farther between and the poor wanderers felt that it was idle as well to seek for charity in those deserted silent streets. At last the old man stopped and groaned aloud.

"What is it, grandfather, dear? Don't give in now, when we have come so far. Lean on me—do, I'm hardly tired at all, and I dare say we shall do better to-morrow."

"To-morrow!" said the old man, bitterly "to-morrow it will be too late. I don't mind hunger, and I don't mind cold, but the shame of it, the disgrace—after having struggled against it all these years—to come to the workhouse at last! It isn't for myself I mind—beggars mustn't be choosers, and I dare say better men than I have slept in a casual ward, but you, my tender little Lily. The thought breaks my heart, it kills me!" And the old man sobbed aloud.

"Dear grandfather, you are always thinking of me and never of yourself. What does it matter, after all? It's only the name of the thing. I'm sure I don't mind it one bit." The shudder of horror which passed over the girl's frame gave the lie to her pious falsehood. "I dare say it is not so very bad, and after all, something may happen to prevent it even now!"

"What can happen short of a miracle in these deserted streets?"

"Well, let us hope for the miracle, then, dear. God has never deserted us in our deepest troubles, and I don't believe He will forsake us now."

As she spoke she drew her thin shawl more closely around her, shivering in spite of herself under the cold blast, which seemed to receive no check from her scanty coverings. Again the pair crept on, and passing beneath the wall of old St. Winifred's church stood beneath it for a temporary shelter from the driving wind and snow. While so standing they caught the faint sounds of the organ solemnly pealing within.

"Noble music!" said the old man as the final chords died away, "noble music and a soul in the playing. That man, whoever he may be, should have a generous heart."

"Hush, grandfather!" said the girl, "he is beginning to play again!"

Scarcely had the music commenced, however, than the pair gazed at each other in breathless surprise.

"Lily, darling, do you hear what he is playing?" said the old man in an excited whisper.

"A strange coincidence," the girl replied.

"Strange! it is more than strange. Lily, darling, who could play that song?"

The melody came to an end and all was silence. There was a moment's pause, and then, as if by a common impulse, the old man drew his bow across the strings, and the girl's sweet voice caroled forth the second verse of the song. Scarcely had they ended when a door opened at the foot of the church tower just beside them, and Michael Fray, bareheaded, with his scanty locks blown about by the winter wind stood before them. He hurried forward and then stood still, shamefaced, bewildered. The song had called up the vision of a gallant young sailor full of life and health, as Michael had seen his brother for the last time on the day when he sailed on his fatal voyage. He had hurried forth forgetting the years that had passed, full of tender memories of happy boyish days, to find, alas! only a couple of wandering beggars singing for bread.

"I beg your pardon," he said, striving vainly to master his emotions, "you sang a song just now which—which—a song which was a favorite of a dear friend of mine many years ago. Will you—will you tell me where you got it?"

"By the best of all titles, sir," the old fiddler answered, drawing himself up with a touch of artistic pride. "I wrote it myself, words and music both."

"Nay, sir," said Michael sternly, "you wrong the dead. A dearly beloved brother of mine wrote that song forty years ago."

"Well upon my word," said the old fiddler waxing wroth, "then your brother must have stolen it from me! What might this precious brother's name be?"

"An honest name, a name I am proud to speak," said Michael, firing up in his turn, "his name was Richard Fray."

The old street musician staggered as if he had received a blow.

"What!" he exclaimed, peering eagerly into the other's face, "then you are my brother Michael, for I am Richard Fray."

Half an hour later and the brothers so long parted, so strangely brought together, were seated round a roaring fire in Michael Fray's quaint, three cornered parlor. Michael's stores had been ransacked for warm, dry clothing for the wanderers. Drawers long closed yielded when opened a sweet scent of lavender and contained homely skirts and bodices kept still in loving memory of little Nell gave [illegible] Lily [illegible] and Richard Fray's [illegible] were replaced by Michael's [illegible] slippers. The wanderers had [illegible] [illegible] punch now steamed upon the hob and was laid under frequent contribution while [illegible] and Fray told the story of thirty years wandering, and the brothers [illegible] [illegible] they had lived their lives [illegible] but a few miles apart and yet as lost [illegible] though severed by the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] sweet song [illegible] Michael [illegible] fanciful likeness [illegible] strange similarity [illegible] sweet [illegible] the tender illusion. And [illegible] family party was gathered together [illegible] England on that Christmas [illegible] the group round Michael Fray's [illegible] fire.

"Well, grandfather dear," said Lily, after a pause, "won't you believe in miracles now?"

"My darling," said the old man, with his voice broken by emotion, "God forgive me for ever having doubted Him."

Legal Tenders in Portland—buying 97 [illegible] selling 98

Silver Coin—[illegible] per cent discount

The week opens [illegible] with [illegible] special [illegible] features or increased activity in [illegible] department of business. Monetary matters move along in the accustomed channel, the supply of capital being ample to meet the current demand, which is light even for the season. Rates show no material change.

At San Francisco the causes which have so seriously disturbed the repose and embarrassed business for some time past are still in full operation, and though the state of California is in comparatively high spirits over the prospect of another very large grain crop the business men of San Francisco seem to be greatly discouraged by the long continued depression in almost every branch of trade. Money is plentiful in the banks but it is apparently hard to get on the best security. In fact whether reasonably or otherwise those who hold the capital of that city appear disinclined to invest it there until matters become more settled.

The imports and exports of treasure at New York for the week ending January [illegible]th compares as follows with the same week last year:

	Imports	Exports
1877	$34,900	$4[illegible]900
1878	11,840	516,600

Of the imports this year $6,600 was in foreign gold from Havana and the remainder in silver. The exports embraced $331,900 in American fine silver for England, $6,000 in American gold coin, $1,000 in American silver coin and $4,650 in Mexican doubloons. The quantity of fine silver in New York must be small. It is difficult to get any from Mexico and most of that from the Pacific states and territories finds its way to San Francisco.

Real Estate Transactions.

We reported a few days ago the large sale to Wm Reid, Esq, for $11,000. We now have to note that Mr Reid and wife have transferred said property to Donald Macleay, trustee. The property is lot 1 block 11 and lot 1 block 2 Portland. And Donald Macleay, trustee, has mortgaged the same to O & W mortgage savings bank $10,000, to be paid in installments at 10 per cent.

John G Lisle and wife have recorded their donation land claim of date June 11 1852. It is Notification 7624 and says its ½ of 3[illegible] acres, being N E ¼ of S E ¼ and lo[illegible] 1 2 3 4 in section 9 and lots 3 4 7 in section 10 township 2 N [illegible] 1 W

A HEAVY MORTGAGE.

A J Watson has given mortgage to J T Apperson for $24,000 for four years, at 10 per cent on lots 5 6 7, Central block and the S ½ of lot 8 block 27 in donation land claim of Benj Stark

Miscellaneous.

A late San Francisco exchange says: Several engagements for wheat for the United Kingdom have been concluded during the week showing an advance in rates of £1 from the lowest charter made in December last. The outlook for a big crop of cereals in California and Oregon for 1878 was never more bright and cheery than at the present moment, and without some terrible and unlooked for calamity in the summer season we will without doubt garner the biggest crop of cereals ever known upon the Pacific slope.

We understand that the Central Pacific railroad have concluded a contract with the Seattle Coal Company for one year's supply, say [illegible],000 tons per month or more if required, at a price far below anything in that line ever before consummated on this coast.

Forty car loads of refined sugars were recently received by a San Francisco commission house from the eastern consignment.

The consumption of brandy was very limited during 1877, more so than for the two years previous. It is estimated that there has been a falling off in quantity sold of nearly one third. We allude to French brandies. The excessive import duties on this article, especially as compared with the low tax levied on domestic spirit, favors the consumption of the latter to the detriment of the former.

The brightened prospects for a heavy wheat crop in California has the effect to advance the price of grain sacks in the San Francisco markets 1¼@‥c

Of the 979 sailing vessels carrying grain from New York to Europe in 1877, 286 were Italian, 2[illegible] Norwegian, 207 British, 124 Austrian and but 70 were American.

Notice to Mariners

Orders have been received by Commodore Silas Casy, U S N, lighthouse inspector for the Pacific coast, to place Courtenay's automatic buoys at the following places: Humboldt Bar, Blunt's Reef and Point Sur in the thirteenth district. These buoys are to be placed at all important points along the coast line of the United States as fast as they can be manufactured and thus far proven the most effective automatic danger warning ever in use. These buoys are 12 feet in diameter at the float line and 18 feet above the float line. The tube is [illegible] feet long below the diaphragm and 33 inches in diameter. The whistle on top of the buoy is 10 inches in diameter by 18 inches in height, the weight being 12,000 lbs. The air pressure in the buoy is from 15 to 20 lbs, which, when exerted upon the whistle gives blasts of great power and of frequency controlled by the movements of the waves or rollers. These buoys have been heard [illegible] miles, are ceaseless in their action and perform the service of light ship, bell boat, beacon and buoy combined at no expense beyond first cost and are not dependent upon human agency and therefore are exempt from the results of negligence or incompetent attendants. It is probable that a fog signal will soon be located at Fort Point, which will be of great service in entering the harbor of San Francisco.

DR. PAUL M. BRENAN.

His Wonderful Success
IN THE TREATMENT OF ALL
Chronic and Delicate Diseases,

He has astonished the People of this Coast by his skillful Operations.

HE HAS TAUGHT IN HIS

[illegible] private [illegible] male and female. He has [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible] disease it [illegible] and comprehensive language. But where he has found them crushed and broken down by disease [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] physically, he has restored them to health [illegible] [illegible] health there can be no happiness.

DR BRENAN

Has made a specialty in the treatment of the [illegible] diseases, Catarrh, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the throat and chest by an entirely new system only known to him [illegible] Spermatorrhea [illegible] Seminal Weakness or [illegible] Manhood. In the treatment of these diseases he has made a world wide reputation not only on this Coast but through out the whole United States. Diseases of the stomach bowels, liver and kidneys as well as all diseases of the blood and skin he has become master of, and never fails to give relief at once and permanently cures the case if he is applied to in time.

THE DOCTOR HAS GIVEN SPECIAL LECTURES

to ladies only for years and is perfectly familiar with all female complaints and understands their delicate and refined organization, as well as the proper remedies which should be used to allay their suffering and restore them to perfect health.

THE DOCTOR HAS THIS ADVANTAGE

over most physicians—he can tell the patients disease the moment he comes in contact with them without any aid from the individual. This accounts in part for his great professional success. All surgical operations can be performed by his skillful hand, and the patient need not fear the result.

will send to those living at a distance and who cannot well visit his office a list of printed Questions and by the answers when filled out he can tell the disease as well as the proper treatment almost as well as seeing the patient personally, and will forward the proper medicines or instruments to any part of the country with full instructions and advice. Each letter requiring advice or list of questions must contain two postage stamps.

Everything strictly confidential and honorable.

THE DOCTOR

has studied in the best Medical Schools in Europe and three years in the Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia, is more than [illegible] of the Medical men of the Medical Faculty in his state can testify.

CAUTION

Persons coming to Portland requiring medical treatment of the proper kind who desire to consult with me will please beware of persons who may try to coax them away to other so called Doctors through pretended friendship for the patients. Look out for them, they are knaves prompted by selfish motives and what they can make. Be sure and ask for DR PAUL M BRENAN the Medical Lecturer and read his sign on his door. A Ticket of Leave Man.

OMAHA, Feb 11.—A man named Siegl[illegible] from San Francisco jumped from the ea[illegible] bound train on the Union Pacific just east o[illegible] Ogden a few days ago while laboring unde[illegible] an attack of insanity. His wife proceeded [illegible] Omaha with the understanding that he woul[illegible] be sent on the next train. His ticket arrive[illegible] here Saturday, having been taken up by th[illegible] conductor between North Platte and Omaha but Siegler himself has not yet put in an ap[illegible] pearance.

Counter Meeting

To offset a recent joint meeting held b[illegible] Omaha and Council Bluffs to protest again[illegible] Chaffee's pro rata bill Kansas City has held [illegible] meeting to deliberate on the alleged discrim[illegible] ination of the Union Pacific against the Ka[illegible] sas Pacific. They passed a long series of re[illegible] solutions endorsing Chaffee's bill.

Fire

FORT McPHERSON, Feb 11—About ha[illegible] past eight o'clock this evening a fire brok[illegible] out here but under the able direction of Gen[illegible] E A Carr and the perfect discipline of th[illegible] troops the fire was confined to L company quarters in which it originated from a de[illegible] fective flue. In ten minutes after discover[illegible] the whole building was in flames, building [illegible] total loss. The soldiers saved most of thei[illegible] effects and company property.

Bank Enjoined

JERSEY CITY, Feb 11—The Internationa[illegible] Trust and Savings Company is enjoined fro[illegible] doing further business. All depositors wi[illegible] be paid.

Death of Gideon Wells.

HARTFORD Conn, Feb 11—Hon Gideo[illegible] Wells, ex secretary of the navy, died th[illegible] evening from the effects of a carbuncle, whic[illegible] had confined him to his house for about tw[illegible] weeks.

Abandoned at Sea.

NEW YORK, Feb 11—The schooner Spee[illegible] [illegible] from Calais arrived to day with th[illegible] captain and crew of the schooner Sallie [illegible] Steelman from Charleston for Baltimor[illegible] which was abandoned at sea. The captain [illegible] the Steelman makes the following statement [illegible] Jan. 20th 20 miles southeast from Hattera[illegible] encountered terrific gales lasting 70 hours which washed everything movable from th[illegible] deck, used our last provisions on the morn[illegible] ing of Jan 23d. On the night of the 24th during a heavy gale sprung a leak. On th[illegible] 27th three of the crew gave out, leaving onl[illegible] four to manage the vessel and pumps. W[illegible] were fast becoming exhausted. On the 30 [illegible] Geo A Seaman, colored, who had becom[illegible] crazy, attempted to take the life of Walte[illegible] Simpson but was instantly killed by the la[illegible] ter, who during the afternoon ate a portion o[illegible] his dead body. On the 31st we were rescued

WASHINGTON CITY.

Substitute for Buckner's Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb 11—Ewing, Buckn[illegible] and Phillips sub committee of the commi[illegible] tee on banking and currency have agreed o[illegible] a substitute for Buckner's bill. It proposes t[illegible] retire national bank notes as they may be re[illegible] ceived by the treasury through legitima[illegible] business channels and substitute therefo[illegible] treasury notes, to be receivable for all dues t[illegible] the government, fundable in 4 per cent bond[illegible] at par. Banks may voluntarily retire thei[illegible] circulating notes and receive for them 4 pe[illegible] cent bonds, and treasury and legal tende[illegible] notes may be received in payment of suc[illegible] bonds. Bonds heretofore authorized to b[illegible] issued may be disposed of at not less than pa[illegible] wherever coin may be needed for any pu[illegible] pose. The bill has yet to be submitted to th[illegible] full committee. It is framed in contempla[illegible] tion of the passage of the silver bill wit[illegible] which it is intended to be in accord

A New Rule in Postal Matters

NEW YORK, Feb 11—The Herald's Was[illegible] ington special says: The postmaster gener[illegible] has issued a new rule which caused a flur[illegible] in Republican circles. Postmasters for sma[illegible] towns and for country districts will hereaft[illegible] be appointed on recommendation of the pos[illegible] mas[illegible] of the largest neighboring cities. Sou[illegible] western members of congress feel indigna[illegible] at this loss of patronage. They believe it [illegible] be another insidious blow at the Republica[illegible] party, and are more than ever convinced th[illegible] president's southern policy is a failure

The Utah Bill

Delegate Cannon of Utah is likely to d[illegible] feat non Mormon delegates from that ter[illegible] tory in their efforts to have congress pass t[illegible] bill regulating the elective franchise in Uta[illegible] The house sub committee on territories [illegible] agreed the people of Utah ought to have secret ballot but Cannon recently exhibite[illegible] to them a draft of a bill introduced in th[illegible] Mormon legislature providing for a registr[illegible] tion law and secret ballot and on the strengt[illegible] of this the house sub committee have agree[illegible] by a vote of three to two to hold in abeyanc[illegible] their report of the secret ballot bill pendin[illegible] action of the Utah legislature on the electio[illegible] bill now before that body

Arizona Appointment

WASHINGTON, Feb 11—The president [illegible] nominated Charles Silent of California as[illegible] ciate justice of the supreme court of Arizo[illegible] territory

Civil Service Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb 11—The bill introduce[illegible] by Senator Eaton to day by request [illegible] furtherance of civil service reform, propose[illegible] to empower the president of the United State[illegible] to assign for such duty as he may deem expe[illegible] dient retired officers of the army, navy an[illegible] marine corps who may apply to him fo[illegible] employment in the following branches of th[illegible] civil services, viz: Indian and pensio[illegible] bureaus, diplomatic service, life saving serv[illegible] or any other branches of the civil service [illegible] he may deem compatible with the pub[illegible] interest, said officers to receive while pe[illegible] forming such duty the full pay and allowanc[illegible] of their rank and no more
